Attn. Neil Bell Future leader A.L.P.

Congratulations on your performance in the Mosque last night.

It is a pity that the leadership of the party (libel laws prevent me from continuing) Isaac was next to useless and Smith was even worse, after listening to your leaders pathetic performance yesterday I am convinced that the A.L.P. will never get up and running.

I am reminded of the debate on the legislation relating to the use of the "breatherlizer". The bill was passed because it was understood that it would never be used for random testing. It was not long before "random" was introduced, (with a sunset clause) which when reviewed..... Not enough data is yet available to make an accurate assessment.... I don't need to inform you how much the N.T. life style have changed because of this little bit of social engineering. I can no longer drive down to the pub and have a beer with Duncan. I now just sit alone in my flat slowly degenerating and getting very depressed while trying to survive on the old age pension for the next 30 years.

How long will it be before there is not enough money to support the old timers from the public purse?

A minor bit tinkering with this latest example of insanity can solve that problem.

I am in perfect health, have never been sick, and, contrary to popular opinion, I don't think that I'm mentally incompetent.

I attribute this condition to the fact that I avoid the medical profession at all cost. The little contact that I have had, has been an experience the only reinforces my attitude.

How long will it be before some dear young thing who brings the meals on wheels arrives with some doo-gooder social worker with all the expertise of door salesman to conn me out of what little life that I may have left.

Because they can't afford to feed me anymore, the pain and suffering of hunger can cause many health problems.

I support the right to choose to die, by my own hand if need be. but I do not trust any form of government to do the right thing for me or mankind. The legislation is safe now but it won't remain that way, history has proved that.

I would like to identify myself, other than a
Very nervous pensioner.
